(Reasons for the revision)

For the first six months of FY2022, revenue is expected to exceed the previous forecast due to effects of a weaker Japanese yen and strong pricing actions against energy and raw material cost inflations, in addition to higher Specialty Chemicals volumes resulting from a front-loaded shipment of agrochemicals. Operating profit will also rise due to increased sales of high-margin products and the postponement in spending SG&A expenses to the latter half of the year. Subsequently, profit before taxes and profit attributable to owners of Kureha Corporation are projected to exceed the forecasts.

Kureha will also update and release its FY2022 full-year earnings forecast, reflecting changes in the business conditions, when it reports 2Q results (scheduled for November 9, 2022.)

Note: The statement regarding the above-mentioned forecast is based on current information acquired by Kureha Corporation as of the date of this announcement. Actual results may differ from these forecasts due to various unforeseeable factors.
